MAJOR GENERAL JAMES H. POLK, USA

James Hilliard Polk was born at Camp McGraw, Batangas, Philippine Islands on December 13, 1911, of Army parents. He was graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1933 and commissioned a 2nd Lieutenant of Cavalry. Prior to World War II, he served as a unit officer in two Cavalry Regiments, and attended the regular and advanced course at the Cavalry School. At the outbreak of World War II, General Polk was on duty as a Company Tactical Officer with the Corps of Cadets at West Point.

In 1943, General Polk attended the short general staff course at Fort Leavenworth and then joined the 106th Mechanized Cavalry Group at Fort Hood, Texas, serving as Squadron Commander and later as Regimental Executive Officer. After brief service in Texas and England, the 106th Cavalry Group joined the Normandy beachhead forces and participated in the hedgerow fighting, the St. Lo break out, and Third Army's drive across France.

In early September 1944, General Polk assumed command of the 3rd Cavalry Group, then in combat near Metz, France, and continued to command this mechanized reconnaissance regiment for the balance of the war. The 3rd Cavalry remained assigned continuously to the Twentieth Corps of Third Army and frequently spear-headed its advances into Central Europe. In these campaigns the regiment was cited frequently for bold and aggressive action and General Polk was decorated three times for gallantry, once by General Patton personally.

After brief occupation duty in Germany at the end of World War II, Polk returned to the United States and became Chief of Tactics at the Ground General School, Fort Riley, Kansas, and later attended the Armed Forces Staff College. In 1948, he was ordered to Tokyo, Japan, and served in the G-2 Section of the U.S. Far East Command for the next three years.

Farly in the Korean War, General Polk became Assistant Chief of Staff, G-2 of the Tenth Corps and participated in three campaigns. In August 1951, he returned to attend the National War College and was then assigned as an instructor at the Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pennsylvania. Following this duty, he was made Chief of Staff of the 3rd Armored Division at Fort Knox, Kentucky and participated in the gyroscope shipment of the division to Western Germany. In July 1956, Polk was promoted to Brigadier General and served as Assistant Division Commander for one year. Next followed a two year tour of duty as Assistant Chief of Staff for Plans and Operations, Land Forces Central Europe, a NATO headquarters at Fontainebleau, France under General Dr. Hans Speidel. In July 1959, General Polk returned to the U.S. and became the Director of the Policy Planning Staff in the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense for International Security Affairs.

In June 1961, Polk was promoted to Major General and ordered back to Western Germany to take command of the 4th Armored Division. He will be accompanied by his wife, the former Josephine Leavell of El Paso, Texas.
